Day 1:

Sierra de la Laguna Trek: Heading Up

This morning we get an early start to head into the mountains. The total altitude gain for the trip is 6,500 feet, most of which we cover this first day in a 6 to 7 hour hike. But no worries! The burros carry all the gear, the guides lead the way, and all you have to do is walk and enjoy the beautiful climb up through an incredible variety of terrain, starting in the desert, moving up through spiny forest and on through lush preserves of oak and pine. Beautiful panoramic views await at the top. Camp will be made when you arrive and warm showers available for all. Wonderfully fresh food prepared by our guide each evening, served with red wine.

Day 2:

Sierra de la Laguna Trek: Waterfall Hike

Today we take a lovely hike along a mountain river until we reach a fantastic 15-foot high waterfall. There are beautiful pools to swim in so we take our time and enjoy a picnic lunch in this amazing setting. The whole hike takes about 5 hours.

Day 3:

Sierra de la Laguna Trek: El Picacho (Summit) Hike

Today we hike up to the highest peak in the Sierra de la Laguna mountains, El Picacho. Here we have incredible panoramic views of the Sea of Cortez on one side and the Pacific Ocean on the other. We gain a real appreciation for the unique ecosystem of the area as we see the lush mountain growth juxtaposed with cactus, desert and ocean. Inspiring! About 5 hours of hiking today.

Day 4:

Sierra de la Laguna Trek: The Return

Today we break camp and head back down the mountain to Todos Santos and the sea.

- Non-hikers/campers in your group? No worries! We can arrange a series of cultural, culinary and spa adventures to appeal to those who would like to enjoy the delights of Todos Santos while you climb. Just ask us!
